

Government, supported by the press, now is trying to adopt the role of mediator between the Turks and the British, the situation resembling more and more that of 1914. National pride is involved as it was then.

France, believing that the conference at Mudania will be held, now is diplomatically exercising all her powers of persuasion on both the Turks and British to secure an agreement at this conference for the mutual evacuation of the neutral zones as the only solution possible, leaving the issue of demilitarization of the zones and possibly the disposition of Thrace to be decided at a general peace conference in Venice or elsewhere.

Premier Poincaré has decided to remain in Paris until an accord is reached with the Turks and is exchanging lengthy messages with Franklin Bouillon and the French Generals at Constantinople, urging them to bend every effort toward pacifying Kemal's ambitions, as it is clearly realized here that if the Turkish leader insists on his original plan of entering Thrace as the sole victor in a conflict with the British is inevitable.

Two Conferences at Mudania.

PARIS, Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—The call for the Mudania conference already has been accepted by France and it is believed here that Great Britain and Italy, if they have not already done so, will reply favorably to the invitation. It was said that the British representative, Gen. Harington, will be the British representative. Gen. Mombelli will act for Italy and France has designated Gen. Charpy.

Mr. Franklin Bouillon, who has been conferring with Kemal in Asiatic Turkey, is now on his way to Constantinople to see Gen. Harington and present to the British Generals at Constantinople his conversations with Kemal. It is explained here that there will be two conferences at Mudania, the first between Gen. Harington and Gen. Charpy on his representatives, alone. This is to settle the question regarding the neutral zone on the Asia Minor side of the straits. The second will be quite a distinct conference with the allied and Turkish Generals being present.

The text of Mustafa Kemal's reply to the allied note of September 23 was published to-night by the Foreign Office.

The note, dated September 29, which is signed by Yussuf Kemal, Minister of Foreign Affairs, is a reply to the allied note of September 23. It is a reply to the note which was sent in a few days.

"Confident in the assurances which M. Franklin-Bouillon has given me, the commander in chief of the Turkish armies, in accordance with the representatives of the Entente Powers meeting in Paris, and persuaded that negotiations will at once be proceeded with to establish a just peace," the note continues, "an order has been given to stop immediately our military movements which have been undertaken only for the purpose of liberating Constantinople and Chanak in pursuit of the Greek armies."

"The assurances given by M. Franklin-Bouillon have established the confidence of justice with which the propositions of the Entente are truly inspired, with a view to assuring the rights of Turkey. Nevertheless, as the maintenance of order in the country is a duty, under the administration and occupation of the Greek army is a cause of danger of every kind and grief to Turkey's peoples, it is indispensable that the army of the Entente be evacuated immediately and restored to the Government of the Great National Assembly of Turkey."

A Havas dispatch from Constantinople says that a peace conference, if all goes well at Mudania, should be held about October 15, according to the belief prevalent in Turkish quarters.

U. S. DESTROYERS OFF FOR NEAR EAST TO-NIGHT Will Give Admiral Bristol Fleet of Eighteen.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

New York Herald Bureau, Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.

Unless delayed for reasons unforeseen to-day the Navy Department expects that the two divisions of destroyers ordered to Near Eastern waters last week will be ready to sail by to-morrow night. The additional supplies required was the only cause why any delay at all was necessary, as the divisions were ready for active service.

The twelve vessels will sail direct to Constantinople and report to Admiral Bristol. The understanding here is that no additional instructions are being given by the Navy Department.

With the arrival of the reinforcement unit at Constantinople, Admiral Bristol will have under his command eighteen destroyers to be disposed as he sees fit for the protection of American lives and American interests.

GREECE DENIES REPORT OF ANTI-TURK OUTRAGES Frustration of Thracian Plots Starts Counter Rumor.

ATHENS, Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—The Greek Government in an official statement denies the reports of Greek outrages against the Turks in Thrace. It declares that the Thracian authorities have discovered Turkish plots to attack the Greek authorities and massacre the Christians, and have also found a large quantity of arms and bombs. These were seized and the ringleaders arrested. Whereupon, the statement declares, the frustrated plotters spread false reports of massacres.

It is further officially announced that the Serbian Minister here has visited the revolutionary committee and assured it of Serbian sympathy and promised Serbian diplomatic support. He denied the alleged Serbian designs in the Aegean, declaring that Serbia expects only that the question of a free zone at Saloniki be settled. The committee promised to use its influence with the Government to obtain a settlement.

CALLS ON U. S. TO HELP END MENACE OF TURK

The Rev. Dr. Frederick Brown Harris called upon America to fall in with the enemies of the Turk and eliminate him as a menace to Christianity in the sermon last night from the pulpit of Grace Methodist Church, West 14th street. He said that nothing so startling and disheartening as the revival of the Turk had happened since the armistice.

"The devil's synagogue in Europe is full of militarists endeavoring to bring on another world war," he said. "The devil's synagogue in Smyrna is filled with Turks breathing out cruelty and vengeance against those who name the name of Christ. The devil's synagogue in America is full of blind and deaf isolationists who, if they have their way, will write America's epitaph as the moral conscience of the world while they advertise their performance as maintaining her glory. No matter what political arrangements are made by the Allies with the present conqueror, Mustafa Kemal, America is to be true to herself must say: 'These bloody butchers must stop and stop now.'"

FOUND ANYTHING? If so, see if it is advertised in the East and West columns of to-day's New York Herald.

NEW GREEK REGIME ASKS ENTENTE'S AID

Col. Gonatas Says Revolt Was Natural Sequel of Misgovernment.

KING IS CONSULTED

Pledges Cooperation When Revolutionaries Warn Against Reaction.

LEADER APPEALS TO U. S.

Will Press War Against Turk 'if Necessary,' but Desires No Republic.

ATHENS, Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—"I am not, as you have seen, a Robespierre, and I don't even want to be thought of as a military dictator," said Col. Gonatas, leader of the revolutionary movement, to-day in discussing the Grecian revolt, which probably will go down in history as one of the most capably organized and one of the swiftest military upheavals ever affecting the world of nations.

Col. Gonatas modestly disclaimed that his brain was the creative force and his the genius which brought the movement to its amazingly quick conclusion. "It was the officers about me," he said, "and they did me the honor to make me their leader."

A handsome man of about 45 years is Col. Gonatas. His black hair, brushed back, crowns an intellectual face which often breaks into a pleasant smile as in French he speaks of the revolution. "We who made this revolution," continued Col. Gonatas, "earnestly hope the people of the United States will understand why we made it, and that they will give their sympathy to us and, generally speaking, espouse our cause for this revolution had to come. It was the very logic of human events."

Constantine in Embarrassment.

"We were misgoverned at home, and because of it we met military disaster abroad. So we decided to come home and remove both the King and the Government—to put our house in order. We removed the King because he was an embarrassment in our relations with the countries of the entente. He was an embarrassment, so we asked him to make way for his son.

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority.

"It was a matter of honor with us to protect the King. Constantine left yesterday for Palermo on the steamer Patras, which sails sometimes for America, accompanied by an honor guard of torpedo boat destroyers provided by the revolutionary committee.

"Until tried by special tribunals the civilian prisoners will be transferred to and kept on an island in the Aegean Sea."

These civilians include men like former Premier Gounaris and Stratou. Col. Gonatas explained his immediate program to the correspondent: Collaboration with the Entente countries, the immediate reinforcement of the Thracian front and the active pushing of the war against the Turks if necessary, and then securing the unity of all parties at home "which have been separated up to now by hatred against the other." Thus, he added, it was hoped to save Greece.

The revolutionists had requested the assistance of former Premier Venizelos abroad, though not at home. Col. Gonatas continued, but Venizelos had not yet been heard from. All parties had maintained the maintenance of the military government, but the revolutionary committee had decided, on the contrary, to form a non-partisan Cabinet under the election and installation of a National Assembly, when the revolutionary committee itself would cease to exist.

Asked if the revolutionists had any idea of creating a republic, Col. Gonatas replied: "I personally think the time has not yet arrived for Greece to become a democracy. Some years must pass before the people can govern themselves in the form of a republic."

Called on New King.

"We visited King George and explained our movement. We told him that our committee would hold itself responsible for the acts of the Cabinet we have created and stand ready to back it with all the force of the army and navy. The King congratulated us on the complete orderliness of the revolution and promised his entire loyal cooperation."

Col. Gonatas told the King that any attempts at reaction would be crushed implacably, but the King assured him that he accepted the situation and would collaborate with the new regime.

"We expect the Entente will counsel, guide and help us in every way, both in the war and in the peace conference," Col. Gonatas continued. "Formerly we were allies. We went to Asia Minor by their orders. The alliance was dissolved only after the return to the throne of King Constantine. Now that the King is gone and the cause for embarrassment has been removed, why can't they help us?"

Col. Gonatas said he already had received offers of loans from Grecian interests, and representatives of foreign enterprises.

Gonatas once headed a Greek detachment which fought with the French against the Bolsheviks south of Odessa. During the hostilities in Asia Minor he commanded the army corps which formed the rear guard of the retreat. His bravery in battle and his protection of his men in the terrible retreat before the Turks made him the hero of the army.

The Greek merchants in Patras have offered the revolutionary committee £15,000,000 and 500,000 blankets and 70,000 rifles.

In explaining the organization of the revolution, Col. Gonatas said the fiercest fighting was already being done on the shores of Attica when the revolutionaries offered the revolutionary committee Athens. He added that the warships which the Government was desperately trying to find were units in the revolutionary squadrons.

"We were invulnerable," Gonatas added "because we were absolutely united and dedicated to a worthy cause."

IGNORE TURKS' TIME LIMIT IN REMOVAL OF REFUGEES

New Fire Breaks Out in Smyrna, and Armenians Are Said to Have Thrown Selves in Blaze to Escape Blame.

LONDON, Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—According to Government associates the Turks have not replied to the request for an extension of time for the removal of the refugees from Smyrna, which ended at midnight Saturday, but the embarkation of refugees continued to-day, showing that the time limit had not yet been made effective.

SMYRNA, Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—Another fire broke out in the residential quarter of Smyrna to-day and destroyed twenty-five buildings. It is reported that several Armenians, fearing they would be blamed for the fire, threw themselves into the flames.

SMYRNA, Sept. 30 (Associated Press).—Although the time limit fixed by the Turks for the evacuation of refugees expires at midnight to-night there is still a steady influx of Christians from the interior. Relief ships under the protection of the American flag continue to ply between here and Mitylene, which is the nearest refuge for those who are fleeing from the Turks.

The Americans hope to evacuate from Smyrna all those now in sight within three or four days. They are going ahead with their plans as though no time limit existed. They say that if all the boats that have been promised arrive they will have the refugees away from the Turks by Wednesday.

SAYS GREEKS STORED OIL TO BURN SMYRNA

Paper Tells of Kerosene Kept in Churches.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK HERALD. Copyright, 1922, by THE NEW YORK HERALD. New York Herald Bureau, Rome, Oct. 1.

Startling accusations regarding the Smyrna conflagration are made by a correspondent for the Milan newspaper Corriere della Sera, who states that large quantities of kerosene were concealed in the Greek churches in Smyrna a few days before the onset of the Turkish army, and that the local head of the Greek church was actively concerned in the plan to burn the city should the Turks capture it.

According to the correspondent the presence of oil stores in Greek churches was known to the Italian Consul at Smyrna, who, during a conference with city authorities a few days before the arrival of the Turks, openly accused the Greek Bishop of plotting to destroy the city.

CARRIAGES COSTING $15,000 SOLD FOR $20

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 1.—Thirteen carriages which once belonged to "Big" Tim Sullivan, Anthony J. Drexel, Mrs. August Belmont 2d and others of America's well known citizens were auctioned off here to-day for $20.

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."

"We brought with us to Athens an army of sufficient size to render all resistance, ineffective, and we carried through the revolution without shedding a single drop of blood. We arrested five civilians, two of whom were responsible for our defeat in Asia Minor, and two officers for trying to foment resistance to us without governmental authority."